WEBINAR: Wednesday, Jan. 31, 2024

A Luxury Roundtable Presentation

With global wealth and stock markets at an all-time high, it is no surprise that demand for luxury real estate has stayed strong globally. However, inventory in the United States and key prime markets across Europe remains tight, while new developments in Asia, particularly Dubai, are attracting the wealthy's attention for investment and residence. But what will the landscape look like in 2024, a year of elections in 70 countries, including the U.S., and in an environment with geopolitical uncertainty?

In this hourlong webinar Jan. 31 at noon to 1 p.m. ET (New York time), panelists will discuss:

- The state of luxury real estate in key markets: pockets of growth and areas of potential
- Changes expected in buyer and seller behavior influenced by demand and supply, return-to-office/work-from-home and interest rates
- The rapid advance of branded residences
- How luxury agents and brokers should navigate the year ahead to win new listings and maintain strong relationships
